THE MUSEUM OF CONTEMPORARY ART, LOS ANGELES (MOCA), ANNOUNCES THE RESIGNATION OF BOARD MEMBER STEVEN MNUCHIN

LOS ANGELES — The Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles, announced today that, effective immediately, Steven Mnuchin has resigned from the Board of Trustees of the museum.

“Since I’ll be focusing my full-time efforts as nominee for Secretary of Treasury, I’ve decided to resign from MOCA’s Board of Trustees,” says Mnuchin. “I have very much enjoyed my seven years on the Board at MOCA, one of the country’s most important contemporary art institutions.”

“We are grateful for Steven’s long-time service as a Trustee and co-chair of the Governance and Nominating Committee,” remarks MOCA co-chair Maurice Marciano. “We wish him all the best in his new endeavors.”

Founded in 1979, MOCA’s vision is to be the defining museum of contemporary art. In a relatively short period of time, MOCA has achieved astonishing growth with three Los Angeles locations of architectural renown; a world-class permanent collection of more than 6,800 objects, international in scope and among the finest in the world; hallmark education programs that are widely emulated; award-winning publications that present original scholarship; groundbreaking monographic, touring, and thematic exhibitions of international repute that survey the art of our time; and cutting-edge engagement with modes of new media production. MOCA is a not-for-profit institution that relies on a variety of funding sources for its activities.
